Leigh's writing is raw, honest, and deeply moving, and her story offers a unique and important perspective on the struggles of addiction and the power of the human spirit.

Leigh begins her story by describing her idyllic childhood in a small town in Ohio. She was a bright and talented student, and she had a loving family and friends. However, her life took a dark turn when she was introduced to drugs at a young age. At first, she used drugs recreationally, but she quickly became addicted.

Leigh's addiction led her down a path of self-destruction. She lost her job, her home, and her relationships. She was arrested multiple times and even spent time in prison. At her lowest point, she was living on the streets and prostituting herself to support her drug habit.

However, even in her darkest days, Leigh never gave up hope. She knew that she needed to get clean, and she was determined to find a way. With the help of a therapist and a support group, Leigh began her recovery.

Recovery was not easy, but Leigh was determined to succeed. She worked hard to overcome her addiction, and she slowly began to rebuild her life. She got a new job, found a new home, and reconnected with her family and friends.

Today, Leigh is a successful writer and speaker. She travels the country sharing her story and inspiring others to overcome their own addictions. Her memoir, Junkie Broken Doll, is a powerful reminder that even in the darkest of times, hope can prevail.
